SerialReactor.com, Page: 1 - for most relevant results include both Software Title+Version .Headlines Govt spends $85.6M on flood zones The B.C. government will spend $85.6 million to make improvements to waterways and wetlands within 175 high-risk flood zones over the next year. Environment Minister Mary Polak and Park Manager David Hutniak were in Vernon's flood-prone properties Wednesday to announce the $85.6 million for "recapturing" and "enhancing" property owners' access to, and use of, their flood zones. In addition, residents whose properties have no access to the flood zones will be able to obtain what are called "right to bid" easements through the province that will allow them access to the flood zones, for free. In Vernon, flood zones include the Bow River, Shoal Lake, Willow Creek, Carpenter Creek,

Little Willow Creek, Westside Creek, Fifteen Mile Creek and Other Areas. Some of the areas have been designated "federal" or "federally protected" since around the time of Canada's confederation, while others were added to the federal list in the 1970s.
