From the Financial Times: The Anglo-Irish Bank has been called in to cover debts of hundreds of thousands of people who have bought homes from the Bank of Ireland or Irish Nationwide, which were owned by the Anglo-Irish Bank. Many of the mortgages were purchased using misrepresentation or deception by the bank. These debts arose from property loans that were sold to several other financial institutions in Dublin. Banks have told the Irish government that they are likely to bring in an additional three billion euros of debt, bringing the total to some 15 billion euros, from the sale of these loans. The Irish government has admitted that the banks will be hit by billions more in losses as a result of this and has asked them to sell the loans to the state. Many of the country's banks have been partly nationalised in the last year and now most of the country's financial activity is in government hands. Both the Irish government and the Central Bank have yet to decide what criteria they will use to decide what bank is to cover the losses and what criteria they will use to decide what mortgages they will buy from them. Under the terms of the special liquidation of Anglo-Irish Bank, all debts owned by the bank are not covered by the scheme.Q: In a relationshihp between two tables A, B, do I need to fill in values in A d0c515b9f4

A multicentre Australian and international experience. The objective of this study was to demonstrate the safety of laparoscopic uterine morcellation in a large series of women with benign gynaecological conditions and compare the operative outcomes with open abdominal and vaginal morcellation. A retrospective review identified 251 women with benign gynaecological conditions (e.g. endometriosis, myomas, atrophic vaginitis, endometrial polyps) who underwent laparoscopic uterine morcellation at 24 centres in Australia and nine centres in South Africa between March 1999 and March 2002. Morcellation was completed in all women and the uterine cavity was explored. Mean operating time was 51 min (range 12-350 min) and mean blood loss was 50 ml (range 0-3 000 ml). Intra- and post-operative complications were reported in four and five women, respectively. Uterine perforation occurred in three women and uterine perforation was repaired laparoscopically in all cases. The mean hospital stay was 2 days. Laparoscopic uterine morcellation for benign gynaecological conditions is safe and effective, resulting in lower pain, shorter hospital stay and faster recovery than open uterine morcellation in selected women.US president Donald Trump has threatened to impose new sanctions on Iran over its ballistic missile programme, adding to already existing sanctions already in place. The US move follows new ballistic missile launches by Iran and is the latest in a string of unilateral moves against Tehran that have rankled allies and critics alike. The US secretary of state, Rex Tillerson, said that the US will not hesitate to take "further actions" if Iran does not show compliance with a landmark 2015 nuclear agreement. Mr Tillerson, who said at a security conference in Germany on Saturday that the United States "cannot guarantee the safety and security of the American people in the absence of a vital US-Iran dialogue that advances our national interests and those of the world", said:
