Q: Check if UIWebView contains a link (image, text or other) I know that checking the html of a UIWebView is as easy as webView.string, but I am checking if it contains a link or not. When user enters a link in browser, I return true, but when i enter a link in the webpage from the app, I return false. My question is: Is it possible to check if the webpage contains a link? A: You can use stringByEvaluatingJavaScript("") to get the current page's content. If there is an image there you can check that using the matches(regex) method: NSMutableString *imageContent = [NSMutableString stringWithString:[webView stringByE

I am not able to understand what a "commit not signed" means. I can imagine that it is not a good idea to submit a commit that someone else has not signed, but I don't have a clear example of why it should not be signed. Example Commit master on 2016/06/07 by has not been signed. A: In general, it means that the author did not sign the commit; it could be because they didn't have access to the private SSH key that is used to sign commits, or they didn't feel like signing it. It's still a valid commit and no one is going to reject it because you didn't sign it. However, some people (like myself) see that commit author sign off to be a visual indicator to others that the commit is actually from you. If you want to be up front about it (or just don't care about it
