object, then use the DataView.Sort Property. The following code will create a SortedDataView in a DataTable: DataTable dt = MyDataTable; DataView dv = new DataView(dt.AsDataView()); dv.Sort = dt.Columns["YourColumnName"].ToString(); You can also pass in a DataViewSortOption to determine how you want the sorting to be applied and finally Clear the sorting options to revert to the default sorting. A: You can bind the DataSource to a List and sort it. Ask HN: What are top sites for high traffic search phrases? - jmtulloss I'd like to find out about high traffic search phrases, especially high specific keywords. What are some of the top sites for providing traffic info? ===== wmf AOL, Ask.com, Google, Clicky There are many more but they all suffer from the same problem: companies provide them with information, or links to information, but do not disclose the information to others. ~~~ jmtulloss Ask.com seems to be pretty popular. ----- ivankirigin I was impressed with what could do this past weekend.
