Air Messenger LAN Server Full Product Key

The Air Messenger software consists of three parts: Air Messenger for Windows, Air Messenger for Mac, and Air Messenger Client (a.k.a. Air Messenger 2.0). Air Messenger for Windows is a desktop client for sending and receiving alphanumeric pages over a network. Each workstation in the office connects to the server and is automatically allocated a free user name and password to log into the server. Using this desktop client, the entire office can be configured to send pages to anyone, regardless of their workstation, without having to change any server settings or change any workstations' settings to direct messages to the server. Additionally, you can configure the desktop client to include the workstation's Internet Protocol (IP) address in the sent page so that the recipient knows which workstation sent the page. With the Air Messenger for Mac client, the entire Mac office can be configured to send pages to anyone, regardless of their workstation, without having to change any settings. Using the desktop client, the entire office can be configured to include the workstation's IP address in the sent page so that the recipient knows which workstation sent the page.
