This widget is provided as the simplest of color pickers. It is designed to quickly display a color value for a pixel or region of the screen. It is intended for use with UIs which have other widget types as its primary focus, and thus is meant to replace them for these users. It is not designed to be used as a color picker on its own. This widget does not require use of a mouse cursor, as the widget grabs the screen color on the click of the left or right mouse buttons. The color and hexadecimal values are then displayed. The widget uses the standard Java tools and capabilities of the host environment. You cannot post new topics in this forum. Highways in the region were closed, while large numbers of villagers were taken by bus to relocation camps in the hills. Says one farmer, "Melon are everywhere, everywhere you look! They are in houses, in corrals, in barns, in stables, in paddocks, in cornfields, in gardens, they are running up the main street, they are everywhere! I don't know what to do, I am afraid they will soon be inside me and I will become one of them!" After the massive migration of Melon was cleared up, an investigation was begun. It was discovered that in the last six months, an infection had spread throughout the region, when farmers opened their barns and opened their fields to plant seeds. It was hoped that the illness would eventually subside. But the illness quickly spread to thousands of chickens and pigs and it became a major problem for the farmers. Says a farmer, "At first I thought I was being transported to the Farm of Life, a place where I would spend the rest of my days doing the most strenuous and laborious work. Then I heard that the reason for my move was that I had been infected with a virus. This was an unpleasant prospect, since the virus was spreading. I was afraid that it would infect the living room furniture and my car, and so I asked the local doctor, 'how can I be cured of the virus?' He said, 'I don't know, just keep your windows and doors closed until I come to visit.' I was relieved to hear that the farm was not going to be a prison. I had thought that there was no other place in which I could live and work than the farm. I then asked the doctor if he could get the virus out of me. He
